REVOLUTIONARY MEMORIAL SERVICE For GEORGE JACKSON,
Field Marshal, Black Panther Party
A tape recording of the following statement, made by our fallen comrade, George Jackson, was played to the thousands who attended the revolutionary memorial services for our Field Marshal. We print it here for your close study.

The co-optation thing is a mechanism of the American brand of fascism. We have to understand that first. In essence, how it works is that each group, each social unit, larger than two, the powers-that-be will approach the element that’s guiding that social unit, and attempt in some way - and we’ll get possibilities, there are a thousand ways of approaching: playing on loyalties; or, let’s say, the money thing, the money syndrome, we’ve had that trained into us from infancy; or they’ll attempt to show us the futility of our actions; and then perhaps, if America and the establishment not being able to deal with Black nationalism. Well they have been, they’ve built foundations, you know, the Ford Foundation, Rockefeller Foundation, and so forth. They bought them off. How do we stop those things from happening. As far as I’m concerned our dialectic, our intentions, our goals are so mutually exclusive to those of our opposition, that I can’t see anywhere we can find anything to agree on. And, we have to stop it right from the beginning. In other words, no acceptance of tokens, none whatsoever, in the building of the People’s world. We do it on our own. We do it with our own facilities. And to say that we can’t do it, to say that we don’t have the personnel, that we don’t have the financial means is just like saying that producers can’t produce, that breadmakers can’t make bread. We don’t need them. That’s the whole point. So we stop them by barring them completely from our program.

We can’t limit ourselves to any one particular form of struggle; but I’m saying that the people who are given the responsibility of deciding which facilities that we’ll take and use for our own, for the building of the infrastructure, for our own, I think that these people should use extreme caution and always bear in mind that the underlying motive is tokenism, and at all times be - cynical. Take, yes; but, take it in the spirit of reparations, and reparations only.

We have a very, very, very touchy, fundamental problem; and, I think it begins with the ideal - I don’t think we fully understand the period or stage that we’re in right now, the stage of the struggle that we’re in right now. The ideal situation, where each man can be a man, can be an individual - and I don’t mean in the existentialist sense - where each man can be truly free, to make decisions on his own, make decisions on his own, and from his own mind. We haven’t reached that point yet; and it might be 2,000 years before we reach that point. Right now, at the present, to think that that thing is possible is verging on anomaly. And I seriously feel that the problem lies in the fact that we don't understand what Democratic Centralism means, and its function and its power, and its power to all of our movement. I really, seriously don't believe that anything can be accomplished without Democratic Centralism at this stage, because we've inherited things from thousands and thousands of years ago into our character, into our beings. In particular, we've inherited things over the last 300 years of capitalism and over the last few decades of fascism, corporativism. We've inherited things that disallow us from, let's say, egalitarian conduct, I think we have to recognize that, and understand that our movement has to be carried by, guided by disciplined and sincere, but organized, Democratic Centralism.

Power, in its essence, has a growth process, just like everything else. If we snatch that thing up out of its process and look at it as it WAS, we're looking at a thing that's dead. It's a thing in process, just like everything else. It goes through a state of infancy, maturity and then, of course, decline. The prestige of power at its maturity is a thing that will prevent people from acting against that power. This pig is a psychological thing, a state of being wherein the bourgeoisie reign of terror need not rely on violence to sustain itself. It's relying on something that happened in the past, or some accomplishment, or some... let's say, coup, that went down in the past, where it occurred itself. And it's drifting at this point, the prestige of power means that it's drifting at this point and living off its laurels. At this stage, people just are not inclined to attack that power. So, consequently, our first attack is on the prestige of power. That particular job, to destroy the prestige of power, the iconoclastic act of crushing symbols. Once these symbols are crushed, and people see that they are vulnerable, then we can move on to the actual destruction of the basis of power. Because power, after, after the destruction of the prestige of power, power will be forced to revert back to its original force, raw brute force — violence.

First of all, I'd like to clear up a couple of points in that area that have come up, criticisms of my particular analysis of fascism. First, I would like to state unequivocally that complete totalitarianism, the perfect totalitarian state is impossible. We've had 6,000 years of hierarchy; we've had 6,000 years of attempts of men making attempts to place themselves above society. It's never worked; it's never worked. So, in essence, pure fascism, pure totalitarianism is impossible, first of all. Then I'd like to emphasize that fascism right from the beginning — and when I say beginning, I'm going all the way back to the point where monopoly capital first started its formation in the... culmination of monopoly capital was the fascist corporative. And it took different forms in different countries; and those different forms were principally accountable to the differing national situations, the differing crises that the particular nations were facing; and, of course, the difference in time and place in history. And they each took a different form. In Spain, Francisco and the Spanish new state, that was one form, Italian fascism, that was one form; the Romanian armed guard, that was one form; then, of course, the national socialism of Germany, that was another form altogether; Peronism, that was another form — that has to be examined very carefully because there were several asides that altered it from the other forms that swept Europe. The principal difference between Peronism and the thing that Vargas pulled off in Brazil is that though both those countries were under the influence, the sphere of influence of the United States, and, in effect, they were really neo-colonies and had been ever since the Monroe Doctrine — actually their (Argentina's) Peronism particular brand of fascism was in a way (this is a very abstract and complicate question) — this particular form tended to mirror the same thing that went down here in this country. Peron disguised his particular fascism almost as a benefit to the workers. I mean and disguised it more so than the thing in Germany. The thing in Germany was outright slavery. It was like, as far as I'm concerned, my reading of history, it looked like almost a reversion to the slave state. Whereas Peron was shrewd enough to try to keep a balance — a real balance, no real, but, let's say, a superficial balance — between the working class and the ruling class — which is just about what happened here in this country — and paralleled a brand, the particular brand of corporative fascism here in this country.

Important in the understanding of fascism, I believe, is not to confuse the different dimensions of movement. And, we firstly concede that it is a movement, a thing, like I said, at the opening of monopoly capital. First it's obvious that once monopoly capital started forming, old bourgeois democracy began to die, in process. As monopoly capital took over political rule, the political rule of, let's term it, bourgeois democracy started diminishing. And at the end of that process, like I said, the culmination of that process, was almost total centralization. So it's not a question of coup, it's not a question of a certain uprising of a small political...

Western nations, or advanced industrial states, had expanded to the point where expansion was no longer possible. So they closed their economy and started such projects as the electrification of a railroad in Italy, remember; and the draining of marshes, remember. And then (of course, you don’t remember, but you’ve read about it), in Germany, rearmament was the thing. In the United States, we had T.V.A. (Tennessee Valley Authority), remember — you know, they built the big dam over the Tennessee River and put people to work, made work. They were re-allocating investments, turning them inward, the closed economy idea. And then, the C.C.C. camps, so forth like that, some of those types of projects, some of those type of economics, stiff regulations on the import-export thing. To be certain that the balance that existed in a particular nation’s favor, the politics and the economics were the same, the exact same, with just slight variations, according to the particular national state of capitalist dilapidation.

Once secure and in power — in the United States that point was reached during the McCarthy era — once secure and in power, it was possible for them then to allow some dissent. It was possible then for them to have a C.P. (Communist Party), just so long as that C.P. didn’t have any teeth; it was possible then, for them to allow us to form what appeared to be an opposition party. But, now, to make my point very clear, a real opposition party did come into existence. The B.P.P. (Black Panther Party). What happened, What happened — they reverted back to the second stage, back to the second dimension. They were kicking doors in and killing people, it’s pretty obvious, it’s pretty obvious that mature fascism exists in this country. It exists in disguise, and the disguise takes the form of those idiotic ridiculous statements about a welfare state. If anybody with any intelligence at all can look at the United States and come up with a conclusion that this is a welfare state or any semblance of a welfare state, it’s pure chicanery, an evasion of fact, evasion of duty and in most cases what they’re doing is really cleaning up the fact that they

Mrs. Georgia Jackson,

George Jackson was shot down in the San Quentin Prison Saturday night. There has been an appalling lack of explanation of why and how this shooting took place. We demand an immediate and impartial investigation of this act.

Mrs. Georgia Jackson,

Let George's fiery writings and iron deeds serve as a path to lead all of our imprisoned cadres to final victory. Let us mourn him. Let us love him. Let us miss him. Let us do as he did in the name of freedom. In our last hours, let us die as men and not as slaves. Long Live George Jackson.

George Jackson Family,

George Jackson's death is merely physical. His spirit will crush prison makers and prison keepers alike. Be proud that two beautiful Jackson Brothers boldly attempted to deliver others from gross injustice.

Words could never express the pain and heartbreak that is felt by the three of us over the slaying of THE DRAGON... Our heart goes out to your family, although Comrade Brother George is no longer physically with us, his flames shall engulf the world forever. He shall live in the hearts and minds of many people for as long as this world exists.

An empty bed,
Tears are shed.
No more sun,
After I'm gone.
My family cries,
Their love has died.
My friends are there,
Death's in the air.
My chains unbound,
I'm put in the ground.
Everyone's sad,
But I am glad.
It's lucky for me,
Because now I'm free.....

Long live the spirit of George Jackson

George Lester Jackson, whose life as a revolutionary was exemplary, is a giant in every way. For eleven years he was compelled by the nature of his surroundings to fight a constant battle. Though he fell, those charged with the task of destroying him could not and cannot destroy his essence. They could not destroy his essence. They could not and cannot annihilate the principles he stood for and defended to the death.

George still lives, as does his Brother, Jonathan - and millions of people, the downtrodden and the oppressed, will love them, breathe in their spirits and continue, with their inspiration, to fight for the victory towards whose attainment they had to make the supreme sacrifice.

Let us not weep. George did not want tears. So he had said: "We gather up our dead, clean them, kiss them and smile; the tears we save for the victory. If we see the spring after this protracted war, then we can cry for Jonathan and all the rest. We'll know what they missed."

We must fight for that Victory and usher in the spring, for only then will we have earned the right to shed our tears for George, Jonathan and all our fallen soldiers.

FOR FIELD MARSHAL GEORGE JACKSON

Love ... for the principles of Black Manhood and Liberation ... Love for the revolutionary necessity to tear freedom from the locked jaws of the diabolical beast of oppression and injustice ... Love ... for the People ... is the Love that is often paid for with Life itself. Every Soldier for the People knows this is what Revolution is all about.

George Jackson, Revolutionary Supreme, Field Marshal for the Black Panther Party, and Commander-in-Chief of the Black Militant Front, spent all of his adult life expressing this Love and gave his life, Saturday - August 21, 1971, protecting this Love.

Speaking out in the name of this Love to his Brothers in concentrated bondage made his assassination desirable to his enemies ... Manifesting the strength of this Love in his Black Manhood made his assassination be demanded by his enemies ... Giving birth to an unyielding Revolutionary Spirit from the womb of this Love made his assassination be ordered by his enemies ... Not having the protection of this Love in all of the People he loved made his assassination by his enemies possible.

To mourn the tragic death of this Revolutionary Soldier in any way other than combat is absolute disrespect ... To disregard the pattern of assassination today, genocide tomorrow, in the history of his and our enemies is unforgivable hypocrisy ... To leave the forces intact that commit these abominable atrocities against the People is inevitable suicide.

They have killed the body of a Revolutionary Leader but his Revolutionary Spirit lives and grows in the Army that he has left as a legacy of revolt) ... And we must show our respect for their life-blood by making certain that it was well spent and not unnecessarily wasted... and in the words of our Commander-in-Chief "WE WILL WIN!"

London

Jackson Family

We pay our deepest respects to a life that was totally dedicated to the liberation of our people; to a brother we have loved, Brother George.

Power To The People,
Black Liberation Front

To the Jackson Family,

I wish to say that I am very sad over the death of George. And would like to say that we should not cry for the dead, we should cry for the living because we are the ones suffering. Mrs. Jackson, I know that you have not recovered from the death of Jonathan and now I know you will be very sad and will not recover over the death of both your sons too easy.

ALL POWER TO THE PEOPLE
Revolutionary Love.
Long Live the Revolutionary Spirits of Comrades George and Jonathan Jackson!

To the Jackson Family

I am writing to all of you to tell you that I heard about George. At first when they told me I didn’t think it was true. When I asked one more time, they told me he had died, and I asked why did they kill him. And one of my comrades told me that the pigs said he was trying to get away. But we know this is not true and we know that the pigs are lying. They just wanted to kill comrade George Jackson. Jonathan and George will not be forgotten, because we love them. I am very sad that now George and Jonathan have been killed by the pigs, And here is where I am going to end my letter, by saying, Long Live the Spirit of George Jackson, Power to the People. Power to our fallen comrade, Brother George Jackson, member of the Black Panther Party. First I would like to explain, because many people are wondering, what is the connection between Brother George Jackson and the Black Panther Party.

When I went to prison in 1967, I met George. Not physically, I met him through his ideas, his thoughts and words that I would get from him. He was at Soledad Prison at the time; I was at California Penal Colony. George was a legendary figure all through the prison system, where he spent most of his life. You know a legendary figure is known to most people through the idea, or through the concept, or essentially through the spirit. So I met George through the spirit. Shortly after I met George, I got word through the prison grapevine that he wanted to join the Black Panther Party; in fact he did join the Black Panther Party and he received the rank, at his request, of a member of the People's Revolutionary Army, and he was given the rank of General and Field Marshal. He was in charge of the prison recruiting, and also he would go on with his life as a revolutionary example, which was the most important thing that one can ever do, because that cannot be killed.

I say that the legendary figure is also a hero. George Jackson was my hero. He set a standard for prisoners, political prisoners, for people. He showed the love, the strength, the re-
States has terrorized the world. The state has the audacity to say they have the right to kill. They say they have a death penalty and it's legal. But I say by the laws of nature that no death penalty can be legal - it's only cold-blooded murder. It gives spur to all sorts of violence, because every man has a contract with himself, that he must keep himself alive at all costs. So the state with legality could only, at best, hold one, confine one for a later period of negotiation about the wrong. And even if the state does wrong sometimes, maybe it could make itself legal by saying that we will go along with these wrong acts against us as long as we can negotiate them some volutionary fervor that's characteristic of any soldier for the people. So we know that spiritual things can only manifest themselves in some physical act, through a physical mechanism. I saw prisoners, who knew about this legendary figure, act in such a way, putting his ideas to life; so therefore the spirit became a life, and I would like to say today George's body has fallen, but his spirit goes on, because his ideas live. And we will see that these ideas stay alive, because they'll be manifested in our bodies and in these young Panthers' bodies, who are our children. So it's a true saying that there will be revolution from one generation to the next.

What kind of standard did George Jackson set. First, that he was a strong man, he was determined, full of love, strength, dedication to the people's cause, without fear. He lived the life that we must praise. It was a life, no matter how he was oppressed, no matter how wrongly he was done, he still kept the love for the people. And this is why he felt no pain in giving up his life for the people's cause.

The state itself sets the stage for the kind of contradiction or violence that occurs in the world, that occurs in the prisons. The ruling circle of the United States has terrorized the world. The state has the audacity to say they have the right to kill. They say they have a death penalty and it's legal. But I say by the laws of nature that no death penalty can be legal - it's only cold-blooded murder. It gives spur to all sorts of violence, because every man has a contract with himself, that he must keep himself alive at all costs. So the state with legality could only, at best, hold one, confine one for a later period of negotiation about the wrong. And even if the state does wrong sometimes, maybe it could make itself legal by saying that we will go along with these wrong acts against us as long as we can negotiate them some
