Slum Families Warned Again On Lead Poison

By James Black

When the children of inner-city slums are told to avoid lead paint, they are told to avoid the very walls of their homes. The danger is not just the paint, but the lead that has seeped into the walls and is now being absorbed by the children as they play. The danger is not just the paint, but the lead that has seeped into the walls and is now being absorbed by the children as they play.
